Switched on Seniors

The laws around electricity pricing have changed and energy retailers are now free to decide how much to charge for electricity. This may change the way electricity is charged on your existing contract but it also brings opportunities for you to reduce your energy bill to help you understand the changes in the energy market.

They will also receive specifically developed resources to assist them when comparing offers. Participants will ultimately be equipped with the knowledge and skills to become active consumers who can shop around for the best electricity deal for them.

- better understand their bills find out how to compare deals
- know where to go to compare offers
- Know where to look for potential savings and how to avoid pitfalls.

This information is only relevant for seniors who receive an electricity bill from an energy retailer, and not those who receive one from a body corporate, property owner or similar arrangement.
